

Import global variants of the locale data

The Angular CLI automatically includes locale data if you run the `ng build` command with the `--localize` option.

```
ng build --localize
```

The `@angular/common` package on npm contains the locale data files. Global variants of the locale data are available in `@angular/common/locales/global`.

import example for French

The following example imports the global variants for French (`fr`).

@reviewed 2021-10-13