nautilus

A basic file server that serves an image. The underlying base image does most of the work but we load a specific image when building this one so that we can test that a pod's image really changed. Often used to contrast against the kitten image which loads/serves a different image.