Compression

Next.js provides gzip compression to compress rendered content and static files. In general you will want to enable compression on a HTTP proxy like nginx, to offload load from the `Node.js` process.

To disable compression, open `next.config.js` and disable the `compress` config:

```
module.exports = {
  compress: false,
}
```

Related

Introduction to next.config.js: Learn more about the configuration file used by Next.js.